

Pay for Performance Program

The Pay for Performance (P4P) Program helps you take a whole-building approach toward managing your existing building's energy. P4P helps you maximize energy savings through capital, operational, maintenance improvements and behavioral opportunities for occupants. You get paid for the energy savings you achieve based on how the building performs after making energy-saving upgrades.

P4P pays you based on your total energy saved, rather than separate incentives for individual measures. This allows for:

- Streamlined utility approval & incentive process
- Incentives for going after small savings opportunities
- Simpler measurement & verification
- Financial incentive stream over multiple years
- PSE does the building modeling using the prior 12 months of energy usage
- Access to interval data
- Potential to earn more than through a traditional incentive program

If you are a property owner or operator of a commercial building, and want to receive incentive payments over time for verified energy savings, contact PSE today.

P4P is open to Puget Sound Energy commercial customers who own or operate buildings with following characteristics:

- 50,000 square feet or more of conditioned space
- Have a record of stable energy use
- Pursuing two or more capital measures being installed within one year, resulting in at least 15% whole building energy savings
- Have an interval-ready meter
- Other measures may include O&M and/or behavioral opportunities

Incentive and payment structure

- Incentive amounts up to $0.35/kWh and $5.00/therm
- Performance incentive of $0.05/kWh and $0.50/therm for savings above the proposed target
- Up to 50% of incentive can be paid out after implementation of measures (end of year one)
- Remaining incentive is calculated after each of the 4 performance years and paid out annually
